

Animal Assisted Therapy

Animal Assisted Therapy is a goal-directed treatment modality using interactions with a trained animal to promote positive and beneficial changes in our patient's emotional and social well-being. Recreation Therapist use animal assisted therapy in both individual and group treatment settings to gain functional outcomes such as increasing social skills, range of motion, group participation and overall strength and endurance.

